1. The 11th meeting of the Port-city Universities League (PUL) was held in Incheon, Korea, from 18 to 20 September 2017. Participants from Shanghai Jiaotong University, the University of Southampton, the University of Sao Paulo, Yokohama City University, Pukyong National University, Istanbul Technical University, Dalian University of Technology, Incheon National University, Yokohama National University, and other universities and institutions invited by Incheon National University discussed various subjects on “Sustainable Port Developments and Roles of Port Cities”, including networking among PUL members and seeking collaboration opportunities during the technical and social sessions.

2. Yokohama National University reported that the inaugural Port-city Universities Summit (PUS) was held by Incheon National University on 18 September 2017 and the next summit would be held in Taiwan. It is agreed that PUL is independent from PUS and PUL meeting can be held separately from PUS.

3. As the PUL secretariat, Yokohama National University stated to continue supporting organizers of annual meetings and workshops. One member pointed out that PUL should have a more formal structure and rules. Other members emphasized the virtue of flexibility. It is suggested to clarify certain rules that have become customary as a result of the activities over the past decade.

4. The University of Southampton made a proposal to publish a newsletter twice a year collecting information from PUL member universities to share activities and outcome of research and collaboration, and the proposal was accepted. The newsletter will also include information on student exchanges among PUL member universities. Information collection will be carried out in winter 2017 and in spring 2018 by the University of Southampton.

5. It is agreed to continue to publish Proceedings for each PUL meeting and to improve the level of them.

6. The PUL Secretariat in YNU will keep in touch with every member universities, including non-active members, to strengthen its membership.

7. The place of the next meeting has not been decided yet. It will be determined by November 2017.

8. Incheon National University suggested to start student exchange among PUL member universities including credit recognition. Some of them have already exchanged students bilaterally and all members agreed to encourage and promote this type of activities.

9. The participants thanked Incheon National University for hosting the 11th meeting of Port-city Universities League. They also expressed their gratitude to Incheon Metropolitan City and Incheon Port Authority for co-organizing this meeting.
